V.I. Warshawski Series by Sara Paretsky

When Martina's tortured history starts coming to light in contemporary Chicago, Lotty turns to V I for help. In Critical Mass, the secrets of the bomb, of the Second World War, and of the human heart take VI on a quest from Chicago's premier science labs to the Viennese ghetto where Lotty and Martina were forced to live. The journey across present and past makes V I a moving target for powerful figures who'd like to see the past stay dead and buried.

Unfortunately I don't agree with a lot of the reviews for this book. Personally, this was my least favourite VI Warshawski novel. I gave the book four stars because Sara Paretsky is a wonderful writer and all those skills are mostly apparent in this book. Great characterization, cohesive plot and lots of tension.
